NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

Commissioned by the Delavan-Darien High School Jazz Ensemble, Scott D. Julius, Director of Bands, Mike Cipriano, Principal.

When you play a chart like this, you must commit to it. Maybe it's not as sophisticated as other styles and genres, but funk is fun! So, don't apologize, just go for it! For the bass player, slap that bass with gusto. For the drummer, lay the groove down, solid and steady. For the horn section, play all those licks with soul, tightness and precision. Many of the melodies in this chart emulate a solo instrument or vocal, so as a group you must phrase together. Ensemble scoops and bends must be tight and unified. In other words, even though these licks are played by a group of players, you should all strive to sound like one player. Easier said than done—but keep at it.

This particular funk groove has an eighth note basis, with occasional sixteenth notes to add energy and propulsion. The rhythm section should avoid playing too busy. The bass player and drummer should basically play eighth notes, while most of the sixteenth note accents can be added by the guitar player. The piano player (when not playing written figures) should avoid playing overly busy as well. Pads (sustained chords) for the piano work very well over this groove. Above all, the rhythm section should listen closely to one another as they fit their parts together.

There is not typically a wide range of dynamics in funk music, but the section after the solos (measure 84) provides a chance to bring things down a little in volume, allowing the groove some room to build again. By the time the band arrives at measure 110 things should be rockin' again. But be sure and save some energy for the modulation at measure 148, which is the high point of the chart. A funk groove in D-flat? So, maybe this chart is a little sophisticated after all! Hey, there are only 12 notes—don't be intimidated by a key.

You can hear the Big Phat Band's version of "Get in Line" on our Silverline Records CD The Phat Pack.

I hope you enjoy "Get In Line."
